

Silvia Valadez-Tapia, MA; Cynthia Tucker Dr. P.H.; Nora Bouacha, MPP; L'Oreal Bailey, MBA; Amanda Peters AIDS Foundation Chicago

INTRODUCTION

There is a strong relationship between unstable housing for people living with HIV/AIDS (PLWHA) and lack of HIV medical care, as well as low adherence to antiretroviral therapy (ART). Additional barriers to HIV medical care exists for unstably housed PLWHA who have recently been release from incarceration. To assess and mitigate these barriers, the AIDS Foundation of Chicago (AFC) implemented the Safe & Sound Return Partnership program (SSRP). This intervention was funded by the multi-site HRSA/SPNS initiative "Improving Health Outcomes through the Coordination of Supportive Employment and Housing Services," which aim to improve retention in HIV care for unstably housed PLWHA experiencing unemployment.

METHODS/ACTIVITIES

In-person interviews

• Demographic, housing status, ART adherence, service needs, and barriers to HIV medical care questions

109 baseline interview

- Recently released from incarceration
- Unstably housed
- Unemployed/ underemployed

Enrolled into SSRP

 Connected to peer navigator & correction case manager to assist with housing, employment and medical care services

PLWHA recently released from incarceration: Barriers to HIV medical care

RESULTS

- 48% reported no transportation to medical care
- 39% reported not being able to pay for medical care 35% reported being too depressed to obtain the HIV medical care they needed.

Barriers to HIV Medical Care

No transportation

Couldn't pay

Too depressed

Clinics hour

Not sure where to get medical care

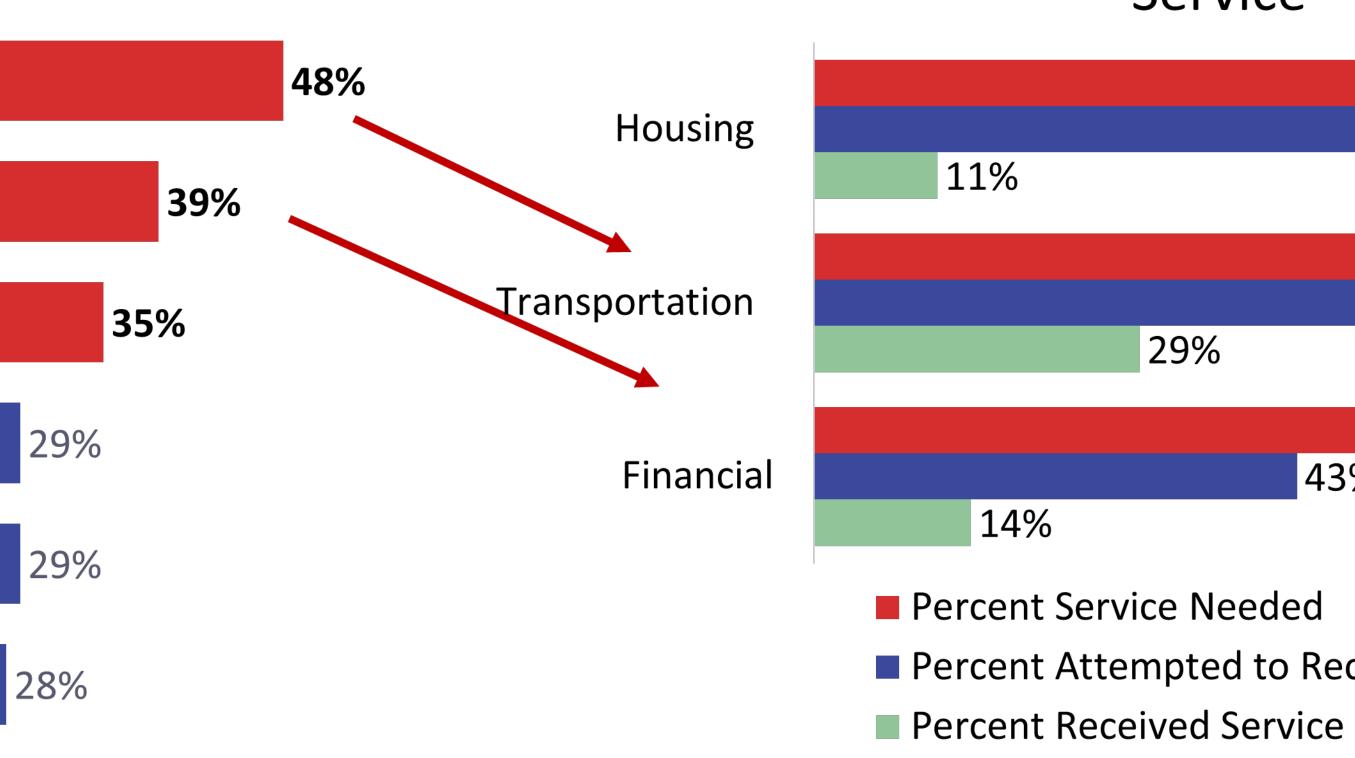

Does not like to make appointments too far in advance

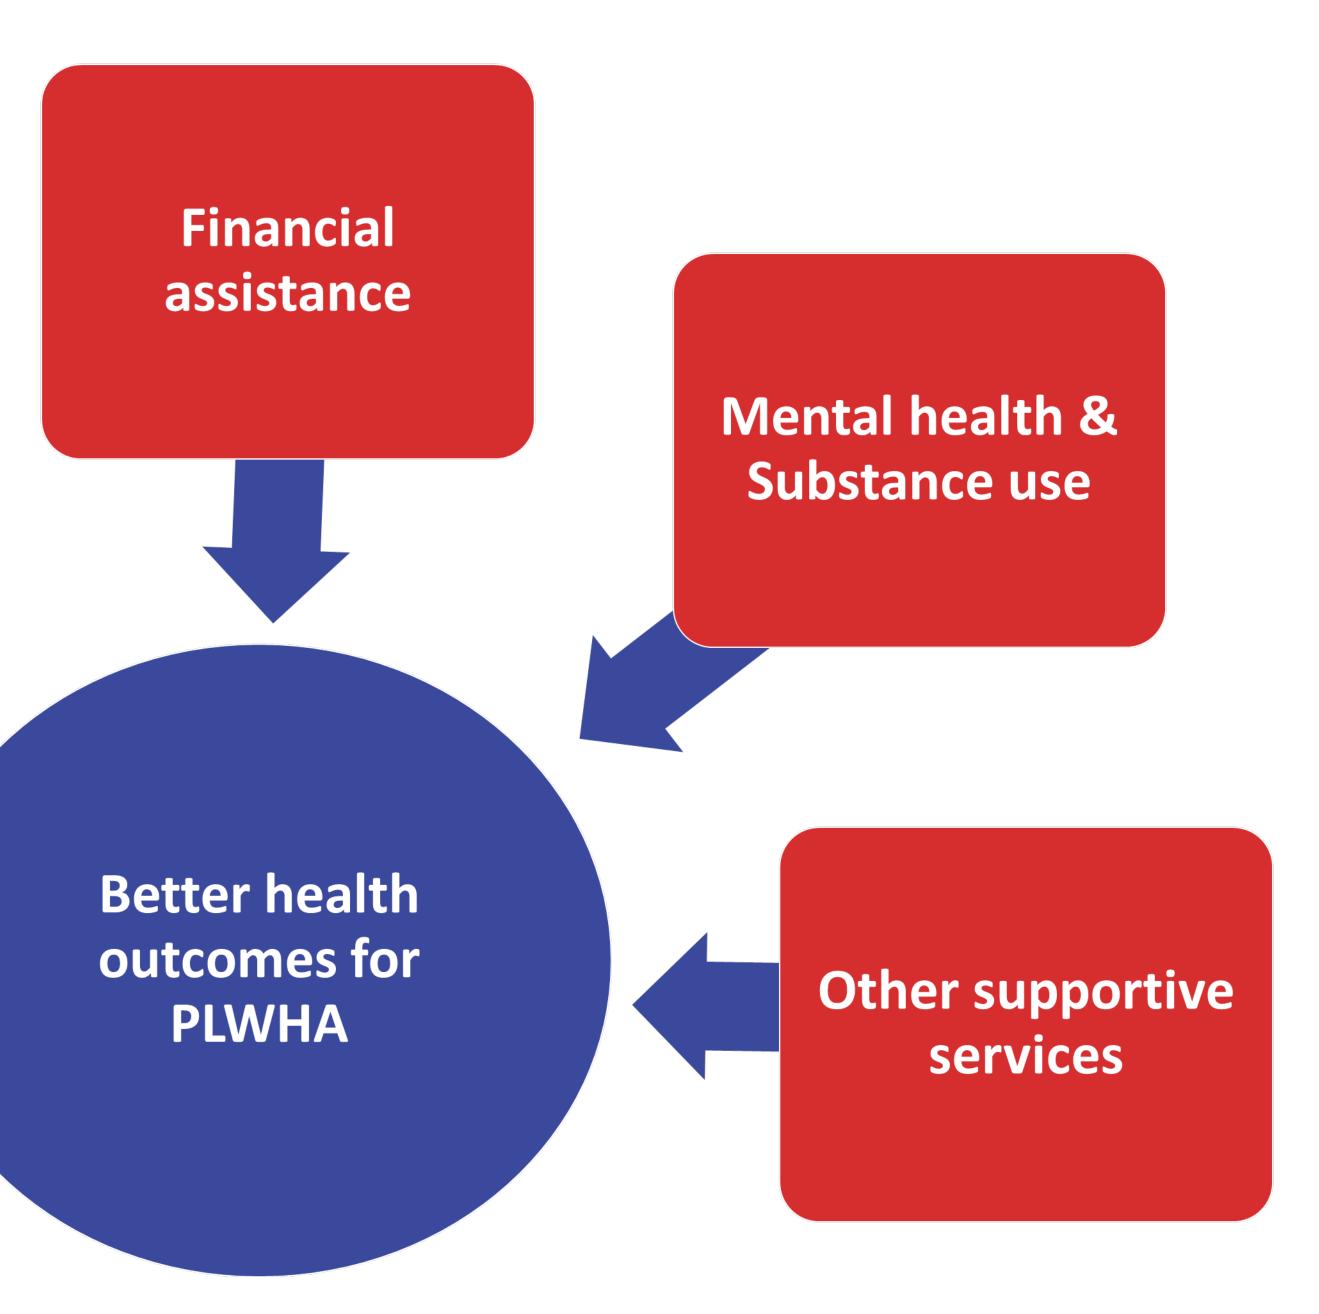

CONCLUSION

Transportation

Housing

- 91% reported needing housing assistance • 87% reported needing transportation assistance
- 83% reported needing financial assistance

Percent Clients Needed, Attempted & Received Service

		91%
	55%
		070/
50	%	87%
%
		83%
43%
Needed

- Percent Attempted to Receive Service

Safe and Sound Return Partnership EMPLOYMENT & HOUSING